Marine Notice No. 14 of 2014

Reporting of oil spills and shipping casualties threatening pollution

TO SHIPOWNERS, SHIPS' AGENTS, MASTERS AND OTHER MARITIME INDUSTRY PARTICIPANTS, AND PRINCIPAL OFFICERS

Marine Notice No. 5 of 2014 is cancelled

Summary

The notice incorporates MARPOL reporting requirements and updated contact information for oil spill reporting.

POLICY

1 Since 1 October 1985 the Department of Environmental Affairs and Tourism (DEA&T) has been responsible for matters relating to the combating of oil pollution with the Department of Transport (DOT) retaining responsibility for prevention. This arrangement applied to functions in terms of the Prevention and Combating of Pollution of the Sea by Oil Act 6 of 1981 (as it was originally called).

2 With the establishment of the South African Maritime Safety Authority (SAMSA) on 1 April 1998, the administration of this Act [now called the Marine Pollution (Control and Civil Liability) Act 6 of 1981] was transferred to SAMSA in terms of the South African Maritime Safety Authority Act 5 of 1998. However, section 52 of the latter Act continues DEA&T's responsibility for combating oil pollution.

REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

3 Article 8 and Protocol I of MARPOL 73/78 establishes reporting requirements for pollution incidents. Reports should contain as much of the following information as possible:

- name of the person reporting the incident;
- telephone number (work/home) or other means of contact;
- date and time of observation;
- details of observation;
- location (e.g. latitude and longitude or the position relative to the coastline);
- source and cause of pollution (e.g. name and type of vessel, collision or grounding);
- type and estimated quantity of oil spilled and the potential and probability of further pollution;
- weather and sea conditions;
- action taken or intended to respond to the incident.

REPORTING OF OIL SPILLS

4 SAMSA, DEA (Department of environmental affairs) and Smit Amandla Marine (the managers of the standby tug "Smit Amandla") are all concerned with the prevention, containment and cleaning up of oil spills at sea. These organizations should be informed as soon as possible whenever there is an oil spill or a threat of an oil spill.

5 The "Telephone List for Oil Spill Reporting" in the Annex lists the relevant contact persons and their contact details.

PROCEDURE

6 Oil spills and threatened spills should be reported immediately to the nearest SAMSA Principal Officer, failing which (and in the following order) SAMSA's Regional Managers, SAMSA's Chief Executive Officer (CEO), any of the other listed SAMSA officials, the listed DEA officials, or the listed managers of Smit Amandla Marine.

7 For ships at sea, the South African coastal maritime radio stations will connect the responsible ship's officer to the South African Maritime Rescue Coordination Centre (MRCC), which will alert the appropriate Principal Officer.

8 A ship in port can report to the duty officer in the control tower of the National Ports Authority, who will forward the communication to the Principal Officer of the port. Alternatively, the ship, or the ship's agent, can communicate directly with the Principal Officer.

9 The SAMSA official receiving the initial report will immediately place the organisation on alert by informing the responsible persons at DEA and Smit Amandla Marine. He or she will then inform SAMSA's Regional Manager about the incident and any action taken. The Regional Manager will inform higher authority, as appropriate, and, if necessary, activate SAMSA's Casualty Response Unit.

10 If for any reason the above procedure fails, any person in the organisations mentioned in paragraph 6 should carry forward the procedure by alerting other relevant persons and organisations.

11 Changes to the information in the Annex should be reported in writing to SAMSA at the address given below.
